How is rack inspection training conducted?

Warehouse Systems Limited

An overview of what you can expect once the formalities are taken care of:

1. Introduction – The trainer will begin with a group conversation and learn the delegates own knowledge and understanding.
2. The risks: The trainer will discuss the potential risks a pallet racking system can pose if it hasn't been inspected.
3. The details: The delegates will learn about different pallet racking types, how to identify them, how they vary in tolerances and loading, how to inspect them, and how to document their findings.
4. The inspection: Using the right PPE, the training group will move to the warehouse where the racking components are discussed and physically inspected by the delegates individually under the trainer's supervision and using the information and resources, they received in the first part of the training.
5. Group Findings: As one group the team of delegates and trainer will then carryout component inspections and discuss the findings and required actions.

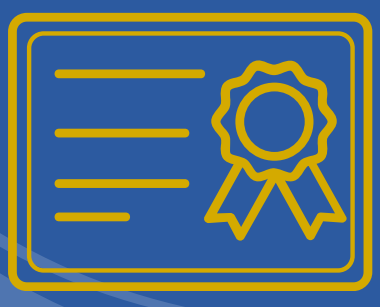

How long will the course take?

The course would generally take no more than half a day to complete

How many delegates per session?

A single session can accommodate anywhere between 1 –. 6 people. Each delegate will receive their inspectors certification on completion.
